

Statement of Participation

iversity hereby certifies that Mark Miller has participated in the following online course by Fachhochschule Potsdam:

The Future Of Storytelling

Learn how to analyze, contextualize and create stories and narratives in current media: from understanding storytelling basics to discussing new online tools and formats, this course brings together a network of media researchers, creators, and students. Timeframe: October 2013 to December 2013

by Christina Maria Schollerer, Prof. Winfried Gerling, Prof. Constanze Langer, and Julian van Dieken

About iversity

iversity.org is an online platform for higher education courses. It enable professors from recognised institutions to offer interactive online courses to students from around the world. iversity strives to ensure a high level of quality across its offerings in its effort to broaden the access to higher education online.

About Fachhochschule Potsdam

Founded in 1991, the University of Applied Sciences Potsdam, Germany, has established itself as an important player in the scientific community, not only in Berlin/Brandenburg, but also internationally, with 3,000 students enrolled in 22 courses of study.

